Art Unit: 2633

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 17 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wu et al (US006545783B1).

Wu et al teach a first branching filter (figure 9, 10) which separates the WDM signal into different groups (even, odd groups) and level adjusting (250, figure 1), second branching filter (201, 203), first multiplexer (202, 204) and second multiplexer/synthesizer (111).

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wu et al in view of Bergano (US006459515).

Although Wu et al does not teach specifics about guard bands between channels, Bergano teaches that it is well known in a WDM system that has even and odd channels that it is well known to have guard bands (column 5, lines 50-61). It would have been obvious to use guard bands in the system of Wu et al as taught by Bergano in order to avoid the noise caused by four wave mixing. In regard to claim 1, the functional circuit could read on either the add/drop switch array or on the regulator (250 shown in figure 1).

5. Claims 2 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wu et al in view of Bergano as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Taga (of record).

Although Wu et al does not teach specifics about dispersion compensation when the signals are separated into groups, he does teach that the signals are processed as a group (element 250, figure 1). Taga teaches that it is well known to separate the WDM signal into groups and compensate each group in both amplitude (as taught by Wu) but also in dispersion compensation. It would have been obvious to compensate each group as taught by Taga in the system of Wu in order to provide compensated signals to the multiplexer.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
